

Hexham Priory School upgrade its classroom technology.

Hexham Priory School is a community special school located in Northumberland. The education and support provided by this school is exceptional and recognised by Ofsted as 'Outstanding'.

The Head Teacher and School Manager continue to explore new technologies to assist with the sensory and physical needs of their pupils. Up to date technologies and the skill sets of their staff teams ensure the children are getting the first class education they strive to provide every day.

One area Hexham Priory has gradually updated is the upgrade from Interactive Whiteboards and projectors to multi-touchscreen technologies. The immediate benefit of touch screens is that there are no specific pens required and no calibration needed. The fact that the screens are multi-touch enables the children to navigate the screen surface with ease and enhances the learning experience. The 1080p HD panels produce vibrant clear images which cannot be achieved with a typical classroom projector/whiteboard set up.

Newlandmedia provided an onsite demonstration along with detailed site surveys in every room. After various discussions and looking at all the options available it was Clevertouch that the school decided on, it's a tried and tested robust product with software designed for education.

Lynx annotation software provides all the tools you would expect and more with any interactive presentation system and snowflake creates the facility for staff to build their own activities and lesson plans. DisplayNote let's staff present and engage wirelessly throughout the classroom.

The systems Newlandmedia delivered and installed have been well received and the added benefits of the Clevertouch in comparison to a whiteboard and projector are obvious.

Newlandmedia are also working with and improving the audio visual solutions within the sensory room. We recognise that support is crucial to building strong relationships and will endeavour to continue to provide the training, support and level of service that Hexham Priory School deserve.

'Hexham Priory School have always found the service from Newland Media to be excellent. They provide a prompt professional service and are always available to offer advice when requested. We would have no hesitation in recommending them to other schools'
